

Woolworths Commitment to Sustainability is only Spin Deep

Hi, my name is Wendy* and I work at Woolworths – which is why I can't show you my face.

Recently, Woolworths announced it was going to end its paper supply contract with Asia Pulp & Paper (APP). But that was just spin!

Despite facing more than a year of controversy because of APP's terrible environmental record, Woolworths is still selling APP's toilet paper and tissue products under its Select brand.

Instead of ditching APP, Woolworths just gives the impression it will act. It wants you to think it's green, but it isn't prepared to actually do anything.

If Woolworths wants to earn some real green credentials, it should stop selling products made by APP.

Woolworths should announce that it will not support APP and its unsustainable products anymore. Instead, it should buy from local, sustainable sources and support Australian workers.

Help Woolworths understand it needs to act now. Send an email to media@woolworths.com.au

www.wakeupwoolworths.com

Authorised by Tim Woods for Wake Up Woolworths!

Wake Up Woolworths! is primarily and proudly funded by the Pulp & Paper Workers' Branch, Construction, Forestry, Mining and Energy Union.

*Wendy's name, picture and occupation have been changed to protect her identity.